Project Prattville: The Next Chapter is a twelve month process to update the City of Prattville Comprehensive Development Plan. The City's plan, most recently revised in 1996 and 1998, is the primary guide for growth and development decisions by the City Council and Prattville Planning Commission. Project Prattville will account for the remarkable growth and transformation the city has experienced over the last decade and prepare for the expected changes over the next two decades.

Following the example of past planning efforts, Project Prattville is relying heavily on public participation and input to formulate future growth policies and to identify needed projects. The initial public workshop or Kick Off Meeting was conducted on November 17, 2008 at Doster Center and attended by approximately 150 interested citizens. The evening's presentation, attendee comments and results from the various exercises can be found at www.projectprattville.com or www.prattville.com.

On February 23, 2009 at 7PM, the second public workshop, Community Vision, will be held at the Doster Community Center. Attendees will have an opportunity to review the Inventory and Analysis Report completed by the project consultant, Urban Collage. The evening's primary activity will be an exercise to define participant's vision of future housing, recreation, employment, shopping and transportation options. This workshop is open to all interested parties. Refreshments will be served.
